LegisItative recommendations

- Order of 22 january 2014: Article 5.

- As part of the institutional policy, assessment mechanisms are set up for each training course or for a training group, notably through the creation of development councils bringing together representatives of teacher-researchers and teachers, librarians, engineers, administrative staff, technicians, workers, service and health workers, students and the socio-professional world [...] These devices encourage dialogue between educational teams, students and representatives of the socio-professional world . They inform the objectives of each training, contribute to changing the content and methods of teaching to facilitate the appropriation of knowledge, knowledge and skills and to improve their quality. These devices can also serve as a basis for the evolution of the establishment's training map in line with the site policy. The results of the evaluations are the subject of presentations and debates within the pedagogical team, the professional development council, the component council and the commission for formation and university life [...] »
